Rus Clarke is an experienced consultant with an expertise on SharePoint Services, Microsoft Certified Technical Instructor with several years of professional instruction experience, and a Microsoft Certified Technology Specialist on SharePoint Services. Microsoft's SharePoint Services is a fascinating new technology that enables businesses and companies to communicate and share information easier and more effectively. With this being said, there are still many questions about SharePoint. This session will answer some of those questions. The following questions will be addressed:

- What is it?
- Why would we use it?
- What are some of the main features?
- What are the differences between WSS and MOSS?

We will also provide a brief look at SharePoint, with a live demonstration and discussion on the next version of SharePoint, 'SharePoint 2010'. Along with this presentation we will examine the various training options available for SharePoint 2007 at MicroAge.

Derek Pollock is a Technical Training consultant with MicroAge. Many years of experience gives Derek the ability to find the right training options for an individual, group or company. Derek has previously presented on Microsoft Certifications, ITIL, and various other training topics
